Germane Systems has joined the United States Women's Chamber of Commerce (USWCC) as a Business member. Kerry Green, owner and CEO of Germane Systems, supports the goals of the USWCC. As the owner of a small business she understands first hand the challenges women face running a business in today's turbulent economy.

Ms. Green looks forward to participating in the USWCC to learn from other business owners as well as sharing her knowledge and experience with women who are striving to grow as a Woman Owned Small Business (WOSB). Under the leadership of Ms. Green Germane Systems has received the FAST 50 award for being one of the fastest growing manufacturing companies in Virginia, was recognized by the Association for Manufacturing Excellence and recently received an award for the most growth in the server market from Intel, Corp.

Ms. Green, the company's CEO commented, "In order to grow we must utilize every resource available so we can continue delivering the industry's best rugged computer, server and storage product solutions. Our membership in the USWCC will let us share best practices with other WOSB leaders and develop new business partnerships. Germane Systems looks forward to learning from other women business leaders and sharing our best practices so together we can help business growth and provide quality jobs in our communities and across the United States."

Germane Systems is a leading designer and manufacturer of COTS based rugged high performance computers, servers, and storage systems for mission-critical military, aerospace, and industrial computing applications. Germane's products incorporate features designed to ensure high reliability and availability in extreme environments.
